My cured patients are my best references.

After years of research along lines of deep scientific study, both in America and Europe, I have found the cause and cure of deafness and head noises, and I have been enabled by this exclusive knowledge and power to give to many unfortunate and suffering persons perfect hearing again; and I say to those who have thrown away their money on cheap apparatus, salves, air pumps, washes, douches, and the list of innumerable trash that is offered the public through flaming advertisements. I can and will cure to stay cured. What I have done for others I can do for you. My method is one that is so simple it can be used in your own home. It seems to make no difference with this marvelous new method how long you have been deaf nor what caused your deafness this new treatment will restore hearing quickly and permanently. No matter how many remedies have failed you—no matter how many doctors have pronounced your case hopeless, this new infallible method of treatment will cure. I prove this to your entire satisfaction before you pay a cent for it. Write today and I will send you full information absolutely free by return mail. Address Dr. Guy Clifford Powell, 197 Bank Building, Peoria, Ill. Remember, send no money—simply your name and address. You will receive an immediate answer and full information by return mail.

provided she would go about it in a simple, direct manner, so he replied: "Why, certainly, my dear, I shall be most happy to make the purchase for you; it will take only a minute of my time."

A half-hour later Nobnoddy laid a sample of ordinary black-silk cloth on the counter before a salesman, remarking that he would take a yard of the same material. The salesman studied the sample closely, felt of it, and finally asked: "Where was this sample obtained?"

Then Nobnoddy remembered that his wife had said something about where to go for the goods, but he had paid no attention to her instructions, for he had mentally resolved to run into the store that was handiest and get it without wasting a moment of his valuable time. He informed the salesman that he did not know where the sample originally came from, whereupon the latter, after showing it to another salesman, turned to the impatient customer and said:

"Very sorry, sir, but we have nothing in the store that will match that."

"What?" said Nobnoddy, in a dazed condition. "Can't you match a piece of common black silk?" and he hastened to another store. Here the clerk took down about fifty pieces of silk, all but two of which he returned to the shelves. Those two he carried to the front of the store where the light was a little brighter. Nobnoddy was becoming eager to get to his office. He had already lost considerable time, and was beginning to wonder at the importance that silk-salesmen attached to their simple work.

"This piece," said the salesman after he had wasted several minutes of Nobnoddy's time, "is the right color, but it is too heavy; and this piece is all right in weight, but is off in shade. Very sorry, but neither of them will do."

And Nobnoddy, in an awful frame of mind, hurried on. At the next store the salesman took a great deal of time and went about the work of matching a piece of silk as though he was the only person in the whole world who knew just how it should be done. From a large number of pieces he selected three and took them to the light. Nobnoddy took an active interest in the deliberations, hoping that he might bring matters to a successful and intelligent termination.

"This piece would do," said the clerk, "only it is too light in weight; this is right in weight, but off in color; this is right in weight and color, but you see it has no gloss. Very sorry, but none of them will answer."

Nobnoddy groaned, remarked something addressed to nobody in particular and started on. The afternoon was fast wearing away, and it was already beginning to grow late. The stores were crowded and hot as ovens. Nobnoddy's collar was melted and his stock of patience was just about in a condition to be placed on the remnant counter. But he assured himself that he would buy that yard of silk if it took all summer.

At the next store hope shone brightly for an instant. "This piece of silk," explained the salesman, "is right in weight, color and gloss, but the twill is not the same as that of the sample and could not be used with it."

From that time forth Nobnoddy had no clear recollection of what happened. His mind became dazed in his mad rush from store to store. He grew to be impatient with those who were ahead of him in being waited on at the silk-counter. Finally he was so rude toward some poor tired women who were there on a quest similar to his own that a floor-walker felt obliged to take a position ominously near to him.

It took sometime for him to recover from his severe attack of nervous prostration brought on by his extreme over-exertion in trying to procure the yard of silk. And the doctors say that he is still likely to suffer a relapse should anyone be so thoughtless as to mention the subject of shopping within his hearing.

The "EAR-BOOK" For Deaf People

By George H. Wilson

SUPPOSE you knew a man who had been Deaf for twenty years? Suppose you met him today, and found he could hear every whisper you spoke to him?

Suppose you enquired about him, and found that he was one of the most reliable, and responsible, citizens of Louisville, whose word could be absolutely trusted.

Wouldn't you want that man to tell you just how he got back his full Hearing after twenty years of Deafness?

Wouldn't you want to know some of the things he found out about the Ear, and about Deafness, in fifteen years study of both, and of his own case?

Well,—that is just what George H. Wilson of Louisville, Ky., tells in his 200 page "Ear Book."

Mr. Wilson is almost as well known in Louisville as Marshall Field is in Chicago, or John Wanamaker in Philadelphia.

And, he was, for twenty years, almost the Deafest man in his native city.

Any one of the thousands who know him today will certify that his Hearing is now as sharp as their own.

Few men have studied the Ear so earnestly, and thoroughly, as Mr. Wilson had to do, for his own sake.

What he positively knows about Deafness is personal and practical.

It is not mere book knowledge, but the actual facts tested out by his own hard experience.

"The Wilson Ear Book" therefore should be read by every man or woman, who has Ear trouble,—who is Deaf, or threatened with Deafness.

This "Ear Book" will be sent Free to any Doctor, or other person, who will clip out this advertisement and send us, with it, the name and address of one Deaf person in his locality. Address—

The Wilson E. D. Company, 207 Todd Building, Louisville, Ky.
